Early Christian Writings - Acts of the Apostles. WRITTEN BY. The Editors of Encyclopaedia Britannica. The Acts of the Apostles is a New Testament book about how all those ancient Christians managed without Jesus. Its authorship is traditionally ascribed to Luke the Physician, companion of Paul of Tarsus, and is accepted by scholars as having been written by the same author as the Gospel of Luke. Saint Peter preached in Jerusalem, and many people believed stories about resurrections and empty tombs, et cetera (sadly, they didn’t leave any records). In Acts 1:18, Peter told a story about the death of Saint Luke was the author of the Acts of the Apostles, as well as of the Gospel which bears his name, is evident both from the introduction, and from the unanimous testimonies of the early Christians. To the genuineness and authenticity of this book, the early Christian fathers bear unanimous testimony. Theme. Acts is a history of the early church and of the spread of the gospel (note 1:8). It is not a record of all of the acts of all of the apostles, but of just some of the acts of some of the apostles. Date. The book ends with Paul in prison in Rome for the first time. Describe the key events in the Acts of the Apostles. Express the overall purpose of this important book of the Bible in the context of the New Testament. Explain the theological importance of key sections of the Acts of the Apostles. Delineate the geographical movement of the story and the significance of that movement. Propose current day application of this study of the Acts of the Apostles.
