The British Solomon Islands Protectorate was first declared over the southern Solomons in 1893, when Captain Gibson R.N., of HMS Curacoa, declared the southern islands a British protectorate. Other islands were subsequently declared to form part of the Protectorate. The Protectorate was first declared over the southern Solomons in 1893. The formalities in its establishment were carried out by officers of the Royal Navy, who hoisted the British flag and read Proclamations on twenty-one islands. In Solomon Islands - America Attacks (1942). SOLOMON ISLANDS: Exploring the beautiful, remote island of ðŸ‘½, Ghizo (Pacific Ocean). History of the Solomon Islands. Transcription. Contents. On this platform Solomon Islanders with experience on the local councils started participation in central government, initially through the bureaucracy and then, from 1960, through the newly established Legislative and Executive Councils. The Protectorate did not possess a constitution of its own until 1960. Positions on both Councils were initially appointed by the High Commissioner for the Western Pacific[7] but progressively more of the positions were directly elected or appointed by electoral colleges formed by the local councils. Gender-based violence in Solomon Islands: Translating research into action on the social determinants of health. Jennifer J. K. Rasanathan Anjana Bhushan. World Health Organization, Regional Office for the Western Pacific. - Draft Background Paper 4A-. Disclaimer This document was prepared by Jennifer J. K. Rasanathan (consultant and principal writer), under the guidance of Anjana Bhushan (Technical Officer, Health in Development), WHO Regional Office for the Western Pacific, with extensive technical inputs from the WHO Solomon Islands office. The helpful inputs received from the Solomon Islan...