This is Dix's tour de force: a big volume that examines the history of the Church's liturgy from its beginnings up to 1945. It has been influential in liturgical studies ever since. He proposes a four-fold shape to the liturgy, by which he means the Mass, and particularly the Eucharistic Prayer and what follows. The four-fold action is 1) taking (the bread and wine); 2) giving thanks over them; 3) breaking the Host; 4) sharing the Elements. The book is very readable and is a clergy must-have for both study and reference.
